Course Tutor

Lindsey Thomas has over 25 years of experience in the field of English and Literacy teaching. Having taught and led the subject in different types of school, she worked as Consultant/ Adviser for Buckinghamshire schools for 10 years, delivering support and training to Primary, Secondary and Special schools. She is an experienced assessor in all key stages and has worked for many years as a Senior Assessor for GCSE.

Course Description

In this full day course, delegates will explore research based strategies and approaches which have had proven impact in Buckinghamshire schools.

We will consider

- How texts work and how we can share that understanding with learners
- How to structure the teaching of writing to engage and motivate learners
- How to provide feedback which supports learners to make progress

Learning Outcomes

Delegates will

- Have developed their subject and pedagogical understanding of writing
- Have strategies for effective planning and teaching of writing
- Have reviewed some of their planning in the light of the course

NB: delegates will be asked to bring with them a unit of work which they would like to review, along with copies of any associated texts
